

Disease wiped out too many people to be able to keep the civilisation going.	A flood killed everyone.
The Maya were conquered by neighbouring tribes.	An earthquake killed everyone.
There was a drought so there was not enough water to survive or grow food.	A great battle between city states killed too many Mayan men for the civilisation to continue.
A volcano erupted and killed everyone.	The Mayans stopped offering blood to the gods so the sun stopped rising, meaning people couldn't live.